SEPTEMBER 2026

Hi,

September brings two new testimonies in Voices of the World, two freshly published blog articles, and the updated job listings. As always, this is just a summary — take your time with whatever calls to you most.

Voices of the World

Two stories worth reading slowly.

TESTIMONY

I got married the same year I graduated

"I never gave up. I was absolutely certain that one day I would finish my studies and prove to everyone that I could balance my home and my dreams."

Mariam was born in south-eastern Morocco, in a region where primary education often marks the end of school for many girls. She held on to a dream for over a decade, through marriage and motherhood, until becoming a doctoral candidate.

TESTIMONY

Talking About Migration Means Talking About Our Youth

“Migration is a short word, but behind it lie many stories, dreams and difficult decisions.”

Siham teaches Arabic in Rabat. Drawing on her experience with young Moroccans, she reflects on the reasons — lack of jobs, guidance, opportunity — that push part of her country's youth to consider a future outside Morocco.

JOB ORIENTATION

The job interview when your experience comes from another country

"It's not that experience is missing. It's that this experience hasn't been translated into a language the interviewer can understand and value."

Why previous work experience isn't always explained the same way in a job interview in Spain, and what actually helps.

PAPERWORK & RIGHTS

Registering on the padrón in the Canary Islands

"The padrón is, quietly, one of the procedures that carries the most weight later on: in healthcare, in children's education, and in regularisation itself."

What the municipal register is, what documents are usually needed, and why it's worth sorting out early.
